

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A method and a device for driving a final controlling element exhibiting hysteresis are proposed. In this context, the drive quantity for the final controlling element is corrected by an offset value as a function of the change over time of the drive quantity, this value being limited to a variable value.

5

09044745-083101